

PURE LIVING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE JOURNAL: One of the best series of books treating of the growth and development of the human soul was written by O. S. Marden, Editor of Success Magazine. His theory seems to be to keep the mind so full of good thoughts that there will be no room for other thoughts. This is a beautiful theory, but hard to practice, especially in localities where a child cannot go into the street without hearing profanity and other thoughts which go in its train. We have a science treating of every subject as the human body, the earth, the heavenly bodies, and the efforts of Unitarians seem to tend toward the construction of a science of religion corresponding to our other sciences. They have often given so much attention to the educational phase of soul culture as to be termed irreligious. They believe that the body and soul of man grows upward toward God just as naturally as the wheat plant or corn plant matures.

Every Methodist sermon I have heard during the past year, either in the States of Washington, Maine, Massachusetts or New Jersey has been in harmony with the thought that the man who constructs and runs the steam engine is a child of God. Doubtless many of them are disobedient sons. Many have been led into close sympathy with Divinity by passing through the trying ordeal of having disobedient sons. We are told in the teachings of Jesus that he who does the will of God without professing to obey Him is better than the one who says "I go sir," and goes not. Is not here an argument to prove that the man who aids in constructing our various devices of utility is better than the recluse who spends his time in prayer?

The most acceptable prayer before God is the ardent desire which becomes embodied in useful acts, like the invention of the telephone or steamboat. The most important part of the Bible is seldom studied, and that is the prayers of Jesus which equipped Him for doing his work. Everything worth doing in this world has been done by those who studied nature's laws and worked in harmony with creative processes. Theology has been most concerned with a revelation from God instead of beginning at the lower round of the ladder, as in other sciences, and reasoning from the known to the unknown.

The society of Friends or Quakers profess to believe in the leadership of the Holy Spirit to that extent that it takes a hurricane to move them. When we read of the vacant meeting houses scattered over the country, we can but write on their tombstones, "Died from inactivity."

A Sunday school superintendent severely criticised the work of the Chicago University. Later he was lamenting unjust criticism. It seemed a suitable time to ask him if the Chicago University was not sometimes unjustly criticised. He admitted that it was possible. All the lower steps of child training are just as essential as the higher and must be attended to if we would attain the highest success.

An animal, or an orchard, which has been neglected for a season, will respond to care and attention, but a stunted growth will be the result. A boy asked the teacher the meaning of a word. A visitor looked at the boy, which produced a smile. I suppose the thought was, "Why didn't the boy ask the teacher to write his lesson for him?" As we look over a room full of children, we are reminded of seeing farmers look over their wheat fields and estimate the amount of crops to be expected. Persons of a different turn of mind would estimate the future career of these children.

Often the farmer has a prospect of a bountiful crop, and a hailstorm scatters it on the ground. A similar catastrophe befalls parents and teachers when a child proves false and dashes asunder the fondest of long cherished hopes. When an intimate friend passes on to the eternal shore, it is but one step along nature's great highway. When one proves false there is a blank in nature. The two are not to be compared.

I laid down my pen to attend a lecture by Dr. W. S. Hall of the Chicago University on the Organs of Reproduction. It has not been many years since a mother thought it her sacred duty to keep every book treating of the sexual organs hidden away where the children could not find it. It was deemed a disgrace to speak of the way in which animal life is reproduced in the presence of children. Dr. Hall prefaces his remarks by reference to the way in which the lower woods his mate in uncivilized countries. I would refer to a poem I once read entitled, "No Sex in Heaven." It represented the Quaker as losing his broad-brimmed hat, the Methodist as losing his Psalm books, and every other denomination as losing their pet hobby in the waves to be passed this side the eternal shore. There is not only no sex in heaven, but no sex in heaven. Jesus says they neither marry there nor are given in marriage. This subject of placing a knowledge of the nature, uses and care of the sexual organs before the children is occupying the best minds of this town. A preacher said it was equal to religion, if not more important. Dr. Hall is a pioneer in the study of this subject. In his travels in Europe and America he met but two men who had as good opportunities as he has had to observe the development of sex. In the opposite sexes are found the two halves of a living organism of the future. Dr. Hall, as well as every other intelligent person, says: Whenever we disobey the laws of nature we are compelled by nature to suffer a penalty. This applies not only to use or abuse of sexual organs before maturity, but to the lady who marries late in life. She has but to consult those who have had experience to learn that it is better to conform to nature's laws as to time as well as manner. Perfect health at every stage of life is the one essential thing. The child must stand and walk erect, and the chest must be

"Our Personal Guarantee to all Skin Sufferers"

WM. O. POOR & SON, DRUGGISTS

We have been in business in this town for some time, and we are looking to build up a trade by always advising our patrons right.

So when we tell you that we have found the eczema remedy and that we stand back of it with the manufacturer's iron clad guarantee, backed by our own advice not in order to sell a few bottles of medicine to skin sufferers, but because we know how it will help our business if we help our patrons.

We keep in stock and sell, all the well known skin remedies. But we will say this: If you are suffering from any kind of skin trouble, eczema, psoriasis, rash or tetter, we want you to try a full size bottle of D. D. D. Prescription. And, if it does not do the work, this bottle will cost you nothing. You alone to judge.

Again and again we have seen how a few drops of this simple wash applied to the skin, takes away the itch, instantly. And the cures all seem to be permanent.

D. D. D. Prescription made by the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, is composed of thymol, glycerine, oil of wintergreen and other healing, soothing, cooling ingredients. And if you are just crazy with itch, you will feel cooled and cooled, the itch absolutely washed away the moment you applied this D. D. D.

We have made fast friends of more than one family by recommending this remedy to a skin sufferer here and there and we want you to try it now on our positive no-pay guarantee.

untrammelled to give space for lung capacity. The boy singing in a choir at some time between thirteen and seventeen will find his voice so changing from the treble of boyhood to the tenor of manhood that it will be necessary to stop singing for a year or two until his voice becomes settled. This is the period of bone growth and the muscles fill out later. Immediately after this period of changing voice and bone growth the body increases in girth as rapidly as the bones elongated during the former period. This increase of muscle and bone requires a corresponding increase in the size of digestive, respiratory and circulatory organs. Though much of our work today is brain work, yet the relation between body and mind is so intimate that a robust body makes the mind more effective. This period of change of voice is when the genital organs are developing the power of reproduction. But the boy does not reach maturity until twenty-five years of age and the girl somewhat younger. The object of this series of lectures by Dr. Hall is to impress upon the boys and girls the importance of associating with none of the opposite sex whom they would not take to their home to associate with their parents and brothers and sisters. They are warned not to over-exert their strength during this period of most rapid change.

Dr. Hall said that he himself and nineteen of his generation went out into the world without ever having been told of the pitfalls to be encountered in life. They are all portrayed in the Bible, but people have become too modest to bring before their children that knowledge which is essential to the protection and well being of the body. First that part of the Bible relating to the genital organs was ruled out as obscene literature, and then the part relating to the obedience of children was ruled out as being liable to crush the spirit of "nervous children." Many have been trying to rule out obedience to God, which would be the final blow.

No harbor master would allow a craft to leave the harbor without a chart. A chart is just as essential to the voyager of life's ocean as it is to the mariner. Discipline is as essential on land as it is on sea. The child who has never got right conceptions of family relations can never get a true conception of his relations to God. God created plants and animals, male and female. Through sinful indulgence man has come to regard the genital organs as a disgraceful topic of conversation. If we study and obey every law but the law of reproduction we are building a house upon the sand. The lesson taught is that every organ of the body has its use and must be cared for according to nature's laws. Obedience is the first law of nature. All must obey or ruin is sure. In this case absolutely no sporting allowed. The poet says:

But man we find the only creature Who led by folly compassed Nature.

It is interesting to watch the processes of nature. We may see the germ spot or masculine part even in a fresh egg. During the hatching process the development of this germ may be watched. The mother frog lays her eggs in the water, but no tadpoles would ever grow from them if the father frog did not pour over them the fluid which nature has enabled him to secrete for the reproduction of his species. The mother part of a kernel of corn is located on the corn cob, but it would never develop into a kernel of corn unless the father part falls upon the thread of silk which extends from the corn cob out under the husk to the outer air. The same rules prevail throughout the animal and vegetable kingdom. The Bible has been pronounced by some to be too outspoken in regard to these hidden processes. However much we may admire family harmony, it is becoming a serious problem whether any person can afford to spend life with a companion who has the audacity to oppose the reading of the Bible in the family. To one who had broken the commandments of Jesus, he merely said "Neither do I condemn thee; Go and sin no more." It is a great wonder that during his three years ministry he never told anyone to "Go wash in a fountain filled with blood drawn from Immanuel's veins." The cross of Christ is a rather harsh expression meaning the love of God and the love of man. It would be better if people would express their thoughts in modern language. The Bible opens by telling us of a God, the Creator of all things. Later we are told of Jehovah, a leader of his people. Jesus introduced to us a Father whom we need not fear so long as we obey his laws.

All boys and girls need to do in this world is to learn Nature's laws and keep them, and that will lead them through the teachings of Jesus to become acquainted with a kind and loving Father. Dr. Hall's books and others, published by Association Press, 124 E. 28th street, New York City, should be in every school room. They would help put the race back into the natural condition in which Adam was before he violated Nature's laws. That condition of innocence and purity was re-established by Jesus of Nazareth.

Man has been compared to an irrigating ditch, through which good thoughts, knowledge and truth should flow to his neighbor. If each helps the good work on ever so little, something will be accomplished. It is thus that the highest building is built. No one was intended for a useless obstruction.

TO BAR BIRD BUTCHERY.

Americans Ask Congress to Stop Aigrette Traffic. Harmless Herons Aid Farmer and Fisherman—Women Working.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17: Thousands of letters, telegrams and personal appeals to save the aigrette-bearing herons from extinction by prohibiting the importation of their bloody scalps have been sent to the Ways and Means Committee of Congress from the farmers, sportsmen and club women of every section of the country, according to reports received at the headquarters of the National Association of Audubon Societies in this city today. Following the hearing on the feather schedule of the tariff at Washington last month, forty-five State game commissioners throughout this continent have begun to add to the plea of the Audubon workers their influence in urging congress to bar from the country the feathers plucked from butchered mother birds, traffic in which has already been made illegal in many States.

In briefs submitted by ornithological experts to the Ways and Means Committee at Washington today, it is shown on behalf of the agricultural and fishing interests of the whole country that the herons, that have been massacred for their plumes almost to the point of extinction, are of great economic value in destroying farm pests and natural enemies of trout and other valuable fish. In two hundred meals of birds of these species it is proved by scientific investigation that 5538 grasshoppers, 257 cutworms, 414 crayfish and 61 suckers were consumed, as well as 361 water moccasins and other snakes which are known to destroy young fish. It is also demonstrated by these documents that the world-wide war of extinction now conducted by the feather dealers against the birds who bear aigrettes while brooding is characterized by barbarous cruelty and unnecessary, and that the loss of tariff revenue on such trophies of bird slaughter could readily be made up from other sources.

That traffic in egret scalps would be absolutely stopped by prohibiting their importation, has been admitted before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress by a representative of the commercial interests that are fighting at Washington to continue the international traffic in aigrettes that employs armies of bird butchers to scour the globe for the plumes of the murdered mother birds whose young are left to starve. With more than 100,000 Audubon workers arrayed with the farmers, sportsmen, club women and nature lovers of every section of the land against these few feather dealers, it is hoped that Congress will decide to make the United States lead the world in recognizing the humane and economic need for shutting out this cruel trade.

"If every American man, woman and child who hates cruelty and loves nature will write or wire Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee of Congress in Washington to stop heron butchery by prohibiting the importation of aigrettes, we know we shall win against the powerful forces of the millinery interests," said T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies, at its headquarters, 1974 Broadway, today. "We want the women and children to be heard in defense of these dumb bird broods, as well as the farmers, ranchmen and sportsmen, who are urging upon this congressional committee the great economic need of their preservation."

Washington Whisperings.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17, 1913. Seven wise men of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Chairman Nelson and Messrs. Smith of Michigan, Burton of Ohio, Bourne of Oregon, Martin of Virginia, Simmons of North Carolina and Newlands of Nevada are meeting daily in executive session considering the merits of the river and harbor appropriation bill which passed the House January 28th. The bill now under consideration by the Senate sub-committee carries in cash and authorizations $40,872,958, of which amount $3,760,000 is divided between two projects, $3,200,000 for the Ohio river and $560,000 for the Hudson.

Sixty-five separate amendments have been offered by Senators to the river and harbor bill now being whipped into shape by the solons of the Senate and which, in conjunction with the bill itself, will have to be considered by the sub-committee before the bill is laid before the full committee of commerce.

Washington during the last week has gradually awakened to the fact that it is in the midst of the greatest woman suffrage crusade ever attempted on a national scale in the United States. In preparation for the suffrage pageant and procession on March 3rd, meetings have been held throughout the city, on street corners and before the buildings housing the great departments of the government, until the people of the capital city have become convinced that they are going to have forty-seven different varieties of thrills during inauguration week.

While the underlying motive of the procession and pageant is most serious there will be plenty of entertaining features, the ranks of "Genl." Rosalie Jones' army, which will walk from New York to Washington, leaving the former city on February 12th, while the ranks of the "petticoat cavalry," which will be an important feature of the parade, are said to be filling rapidly.

The pageant which will be in progress while the procession is moving along Pennsylvania avenue, will be presented on the south portico of the Treasury building. Opposite it a commanding statue of Genl. Sherman, while just west is the White House and across the beautiful Potomac is restful Arlington, where the known and unknown heroes of the Nation "sleep their last long sleep." The setting afforded by the lofty columns, the stately flight of steps and the spacious plaza of the Treasury building is an inspiring one.

"Only two men in the country know who is going into Wilson's cabinet," said a newspaper man who accompanied Joseph Tumulty, President-elect Wilson's secretary to be, to Washington one day last week, "and they are Joe Tumulty and Col. E. M. House of New York and Texas. And they will never tell until President-elect Wilson says the words. "Tumulty knows nothing but to keep faith with his chief. He is the personification of the sphinx and he will keep the Presidential conscience inviolate. Tumulty knows nothing but blind obedience of orders and while news of many kinds will be taken to the White House in the next four years my guess is that little will be taken away." That is a fair estimate of the new secretary to the President-elect and his first announced choice.

FREDERICK BARKER BENEFIT FUND.

The majority of the employees at Barker, Rose and Clinton company's hardware establishment have signified their desire to become affiliated with the Frederick Barker Benefit Fund, which will be put into operation shortly and will continue for 15 years.

The plan was originated by Captain Barker, the senior member of the firm. The fund will consist of $7,500, of which amount $5,000 is to be contributed by the firm and $2,500 by Mr. Barker. The employees who will become members of the fund will pay one per cent of their salaries per week into the fund, from which they will be entitled to draw amounts on a percentage basis of their weekly salaries in case of accident or illness which takes them from their duties.

At the end of ten years the amount earned by interest in the fund is to be divided among the firm, Mr. Barker and the employees. At the end of 15 years, when the fund will expire, the entire amount will be divided along the same terms as at the end of 10 years.

The proposition was made known to the employees a few weeks ago and early this week they decided to enter the fund. When it is established about 50 employees will be members. According to the terms of the fund it is not compulsory to join.—The Elmira, N. Y., Advertiser, Feb. 5th.

This will interest Capt. Barker's many friends in this city and vicinity.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Belfast People. We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Belfast residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had:

Mrs. Mary M. Smith, 54 Union street, Belfast, Me., says: "I had bad ache and pains across my loins, often so severe that it was difficult for me to attend to my housework. My bladder was inflamed and I had trouble from the kidney secretions. Although I was constantly using medicine, I was unable to get rid of the trouble. Finally I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a supply at the City Drug Store. The benefit I received from their use was gratifying. They relieved my pains and aches and restored my kidneys to a normal condition." (Statement given January 2, 1905.)

LATER TESTIMONY

Several years later Mrs. Smith was interviewed and she said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I feel that I am in need of kidney medicine and I get immediate relief. I will gladly confirm my former public statement given in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. ### New England and the Northern Confederacy.

BY FRANK W. GOWEN.

The great issue of the right of nullification and secession based on the State sovereignty idea was not alone confined to the Southern States. As early as 1803-4 these theories or ideas were so strong in New England that an attempt was made to separate this section of our country from the Union and form it into a Northern Confederacy, with Boston the capital of the Confederacy, as Richmond was the capital of the Southern Confederacy over half a century later in our history.

Our New England States regarded themselves as sovereign, and the spirit of nullification continued to agitate the minds of the people for many years, as it did in other sections of our country; but in this paper I shall confine myself to this subject to New England, but will add that the State Rights doctrine was advocated right up to the Civil War which bathed our land in blood and settled for all time the great issue of State sovereignty by establishing our National government as supreme over all the States; and, thank God, no longer can a State or States refuse to send troops to the seat of war, as in the case of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont in the war of 1812; or nullify Congressional enactments or separate themselves from the government of the United States.

The bitter hatred of Jefferson and his party of Democracy, which Hamilton styled as a "loathsome disease," and their views on State sovereignty were the principal causes which led the New England Federalists, under the leadership of such eminent men as Fisher Ames, Timothy Pickens, George Cabot, Governor Roger Griswold and many others, to desire a separation from the Union. The election of Jefferson to the Presidency in 1804 was a bitter political pill to the Federalist secessionists of New England, carrying every State as he did in the Union, except Connecticut and Delaware, and I have read somewhere that Pickens was even in tears. I know, he wrote: "I am in despair, but separation will come. The British provinces, even with the consent of Great Britain, will become members of the Northern Confederacy."

Four and eight years later the State Rights doctrine was again vigorously upheld on account of the "impost embargo act" of 1808 and the unpopular war of 1812. Because of this war the trade and commerce of New England suffered seriously and financial ruin stared the people in the face. Like the people of Prussia, who found themselves in great financial calamities after the conquest of Napoleon, so the people of the New England States found themselves in great financial adversity. Webster, then in his young manhood, opposed the war of 1812 with all his power and eloquence, and even threatened that the New England States would interfere in a separation from the Union; but in justice to him it should be said that he shrank from such a separation and in after years denied, in his great debate with Hayne in the Senate, the right of nullification and secession.

As I write I am reminded of quite a coincidence from the fact that Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, among all the Confederate statesmen one of the ablest, was born during this war year of 1812 and the greater part of his life covered the years, or rather the period, of disunion agitation in our government. As the war continued, and times grew harder with a depreciated paper currency, the people grew more angry and denounced "Mr. Madison's War" with severity. In fact, the anger of the people grew so intense that the legislatures of the New England States also passed resolutions denouncing the war, and these sentiments were largely shared by the people in the Province of Maine, whose rugged coast, by a blow from its own government, was paralyzed as to shipping and commerce and exposed to the attacks of the British. Thus the Province of Maine and the entire New England States were in a turmoil such as Alexander Johnston in his "History of Political Parties" says "the political history of the United States had not hitherto witnessed," and it can be said that among the most fearless and outspoken for a separation from the Union were the people in the Province of Maine. Probably no more bitter words were ever uttered against a President, and especially against Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts, Vice President under Madison, and for disunion, than those uttered by the early Federalists in Maine. For the historian to deny this would be to write a partial history of this New England movement to separate itself from the Union and form the State governments into a Northern Confederacy.

In December, 1814, the Federalists held a convention in Hartford, Connecticut, made up of 26 delegates, 12 from Massachusetts, 7 from Connecticut, 4 from Rhode Island, 2 from New Hampshire and 1 from Vermont. Among the delegates from Massachusetts we find the name of Major Timothy Bigelow, who accompanied Arnold on his famous march through the dark, stormy wilderness to Quebec at the opening of the Revolution. This convention was in session nearly a month, and as it was held behind closed doors a full record of its proceedings was never obtainable. But enough is known of its proceedings to state that much indignation was manifested and earnest demands made for a separation of the New England States from the Union. The convention also passed some amendments to restrict the Federal Constitution and adjourned to meet in Boston in June, 1815; but this convention was never held, because the terms of peace agreed upon by our government were ratified by Great Britain several months before the date for the opening of the convention, and there was great rejoicing throughout the land.

Two years after the Hartford convention the Federalists made their last stand in the Presidential election of 1816. Their standard bearer was that eminent lawyer and statesman, Hon. Rufus King, who received only 34 electoral votes as against 183 for Monroe. Too little has been written in our histories of the life of Rufus King, one of Maine's great sons. He was not, like Timothy Pickens, a violent separatist and extreme Federalist, but a broad-minded and far-seeing statesman, who served his country with great honor and distinction.

"Art to his fame no aid hath lent His country is his monument."

The last instance of nullification and the State sovereignty idea was maintained in the State of Maine 16 years after the close of the war of 1812, when our Legislature passed resolutions in 1831 denouncing the Canadian boundary treaty, declaring that as a sovereign State Maine would never yield to such an unjust decision by our government. Eight years later, in 1839, occurred the Aroostook war, which cost our State over a million dollars.

But with this question of the "Northern Boundaries" this paper has nothing to do, and I will pass on and state that thirteen years after the passage of the threatening resolution by the Maine Legislature, in 1831, the Legislature of Massachusetts denounced the annexation of Texas into the Union as a slave State and threatened that it would "drive these States (of New England) into a dissolution of the Union." I will add that both my grandfathers shared the New England sentiment of State sovereignty in those early days of 1831 and 1844. My paternal grandfather was born on a branch of the Sheepscott river in Montville in 1802, or one year before the attempt was made in 1803 to separate the New England States into a Northern Confederacy.

And now we come down to those terrible days of the Civil War, when the question of State sovereignty and the right of secession, as well as negro slavery, was forever settled in our land; and well it should be, for the issue of State sovereignty and secession was wrong in theory as well as in principle, and could never have been carried out any more successfully in the New England States than in the Southern States. I rejoice today that I am a son of a soldier who fought on the battlefields of the South to preserve this Union and make it powerful and supreme over all the States.

The Webb Bill Passed.

It Prohibits the Shipment of Liquor in "Dry" States.

[From the Portland Press.]

At last, after many years of effort, Congress has enacted a bill to forbid shipment of intoxicating liquors in interstate or foreign commerce into States that in the exercise of their police power have prohibited the manufacture or sale of such liquors. The Senate treated the country to a surprise on Monday, when it dropped its own bill for the same purpose, the so-called Kenyon or Kenyon-Sheppard bill, for a vote on which, on February 10th, unanimous consent had been obtained, and substituted the Webb bill, which the House unexpectedly passed last Saturday. The Webb bill amounts practically to the same thing as the other, and it appears that as passed by the Senate it is identical in form with the bill as passed by the House and differs from it only in the number—a merely technical difference in the title, which may easily be arranged. It seems reasonably certain that the Webb bill will promptly be sent to the President for approval. It is brief, and its importance needs no argument. Let us first consider the text of the bill:

Be it enacted, etc., That the shipment or transportation, in any manner or by any means whatsoever, of any spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented or other intoxicating liquor of any kind, including beer, ale or wine, from one State, territory or district of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, into any other State, territory, or district of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, or from any foreign country into any State, territory, or district of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, which said spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquor is intended, by any person interested therein, directly or indirectly, or in any manner connected with the transaction, to be received, possessed, or kept, or in any manner used, either in the original package or otherwise, in violation of any law of such State, territory, or district of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, enacted in the exercise of the police powers of such State, territory, or district of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof, is hereby prohibited; and any and all contracts, agreements, or transactions are hereby declared null and void, and no suit or action shall be maintained in any court of the United States upon any such contract or contracts, or for the enforcement or protection of any alleged right based upon or growing out of such contract or contracts, or for the protection in any manner whatsoever of such prohibited transactions.

Stripped of legal verbiage, this prohibits the shipment or transportation of intoxicating liquor in interstate or foreign commerce into States or territories, with the intent to keep or use it in violation of the law of the State made in exercise of its police powers; and contracts pertaining to such transactions are declared null and void and not subject to action in the courts for the enforcement or protection of alleged rights. It will be seen that no penalties are affixed, other than the nullification of contracts. All that is purposely left out, so far as the United States is concerned, and left to the laws of the States. The liquor manufacturer or wholesaler who defies the law and attempts to get around it, will have to depend for his pay on the honesty of his customers. He could not go into a prohibition State and collect his bill by process of law, and he would not dare try it anyway, because he would betray himself as the violator of a law of the United States.

The bill, it will be observed, makes the intent the test. Interstate shipment is forbidden of liquor which "is intended" to be used in violation of State law. This may seem at first a weak point; for it would be asked: Who is to judge the intent, and how is a state of mind to be determined? But Representative Webb of North Carolina, the author of the bill, has anticipated that objection. He leaves the question of intent to be determined by the State. Under the present law suspected liquor brought into the State is not seized until it has reached the hands of the consignee, but under the Webb bill the State would be enabled to attach the stuff as soon as it had passed the border. Another point is that the bill does not expressly except liquors for any legal purpose, as for personal use, for medicinal, mechanical or other purposes, though amendments to this effect were introduced and voted down. As explained at the committee hearings, the purpose is not to interfere with liquor shipments for lawful purposes, but to prohibit shipments for sale where such sale would be illegal.

Now the effectiveness of this or any bill can be determined only by the test of practice. The liquor interests are powerful and resourceful, and hitherto with the aid of friends on the inside they have been able to circumvent the laws to a great extent. They might find a way to beat the new law, but that they fear it is evident. This accounts for the fact that it has taken more than twenty years to get a piece of legislation like the Webb bill through Congress. The brewers and distillers and big whiskey houses wield the might of money and control votes. That is the true inwardness of the situation. Every attempt to beat the law will be made, if it becomes law. Already a big boiler is raised on the ground of unconstitutionality, always the last resort of those who do not like a statute. It is asserted that the bill is unconstitutional, and this forebodes appeal to the courts and consequent delay until the question is decided. That cannot be helped, but to the laymen it seems clear that, if Congress has plenary power over interstate commerce and it does have—it is competent for Congress to forbid the use of the avenues of interstate commerce to traffic adjudged hurtful by some States and forbidden by them in the exercise of their police powers. To the laymen it seems unjust and intolerable to have the constitution so construed that Congress in the exercise of its function to regulate commerce would be rendered impotent in this respect and the States made helpless and obliged to submit to having the objectionable traffic thrust upon them. It is incredible, however, that the Supreme court will so decide. The prospect is that eventually the Webb bill will become the law of the land. It will then be up to the prohibition States to enforce their own laws with the aid this law of Congress will give them.

THE SITUATION IN AROOSTOOK.

The headlines in papers published outside of Aroostook that "Everything now going smoothly" (reference being had to the movement of trains on the B. & A.) would be amusing but for the financial seriousness of the situation. Of course shippers are using the Canadian Pacific railroad as far as possible, but the business of this county has far outgrown the facilities of this road. But it helps, of course.

But stations not reached by that road are not having very good shipping facilities at present. One man in Ashland has 4000 cords of pulp wood to ship. He simply can't get cars, and in order to get his product to the depot before snow goes, it is necessary to handle it twice at an extra expense, however, with the hope of getting it shipped some time. Lumbermen are also entering loud complaints, and not without reason. All along the line they are piling up loads of lumber, and paying for freight cars, as the extra expense of handling is eating up their profit, and with the present open winter, with barely snow enough to do business, they claim the outlook is most discouraging to them. Likewise there are thousands of bushels of potatoes left in the cellars of the farmers, waiting shipment, and they fear that failure to handle them soon will mean further losses.

Conditions in parts of Piscataquis county are becoming rather serious for lumbermen and mill owners who depend upon the freight service of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad. Since the strike has been in progress, the lack of freight has steadily proven a great setback to the different industries, and if the strike is not settled soon, those financially interested in them claim that hundreds of men will be out of employment.

From all parts of the territory tapped by the B. & A. there arises in unison a cry—"Settle the strike."—The Aroostook Republican.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken twelve bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. BROWN, 809 N. Walnut St., Iola, Kan.

EX-Secretary-of-State Cyrus W. Davis wants to be collector of internal revenue for the district of Maine and New Hampshire, and the Waterville Sentinel is unanimously in favor of handing him the office.

"Why Banks Should Advertise" was the question discussed at a recent Ad. Men's luncheon in San Francisco. Motley H. Flint, vice president of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank, was the principal speaker, and said, in part: "I firmly believe that a bank should advertise, and I credit advertising mediums to a very large extent with the building up of the concern that I am with. Statistics show that the banks that advertised last year showed a gain of 21 per cent in their business, while those that did not had an increase of only 5 per cent."

Putting soap in the boilers of the locomotives, tampering with the engines to disable them, placing obstructions on the tracks to derail trains, cutting the wires to put the telegraph service of the B. & A. out of commission, are among the methods employed by the strikers or their sympathizers to compel the road to yield to their command. No efforts should be spared to detect the perpetrators of such deeds as these, and swift punishment should follow. A difference as to wages does not warrant the endangering of life and the destruction of property.

Hon. F. O. Beal defeated B. W. Blanchard, Esq., in the Republican caucus last Thursday evening and received the nomination for mayor of Bangor. Mayor Charles W. Mullen has announced that he has reconsidered his decision not to be a candidate for a third term and will be a candidate before the Democratic caucus next Monday evening. Now-a-days the politicians seem to be making liberal use of the woman's privilege of "charging their minds." The Belfast correspondent of the Waterville Sentinel suggests the possibility of a like change here.

Edward C. Carrington, Jr., national committee man of the Progressive party in Maryland, contends that the duty of sincere Progressives at this time is to combine in an effort to defeat the Democratic machine in the city and State. He says that unless this is done the Democrats will probably elect 122 of the next members of the General Assembly of Maryland, which will enable them to pass bad election laws or to commit any other kind of legislative atrocities, without even the check of the governor's veto. To permit this he regards as neither sane nor progressive; but it will be contrary to the orders of the head Bull Moose.

The committee on counties has voted unanimously to report "ought to pass" on the bill to divorce the town of Isle au Haut from Hancock and annex it to Knox county. This, from a personal knowledge of the situation, we believe to be a just decision. C. D. Turner, the postmaster at Isle au Haut, was correct in his statement to the committee that the entire business interests of the island were in Rockland. That is where they buy their supplies and it is their port of shipment. They have daily communication with Rockland by steamer in summer and three times a week in winter, and can run over at any time in their power boats and return home the same day.

The friends of temperance achieved a notable victory last week in Congress, both houses having passed the Webb bill, so-called, which prohibits the shipment of intoxicating liquors from one State to another when intended to be received or sold in violation of the laws of the State to which shipment is made. The temperance cause is marching on. The Ellsworth American says: "Now if it is possible for Congress to prevent the issuing of internal revenue liquor licenses in prohibition States, and will do so, another effective blow can be struck at the illegal sale of liquor." On the final passage of the bill by the House the Maine members, Gould, Guernsey, Hinds and McGillicuddy are recorded in the affirmative, Congressman Stevens of Minnesota in the negative.

There is a good deal of truth and common sense in the following quotations from the February issue of the Good Will Record. "Farmers are not made; they are born." "Agriculture in public schools, as I understand it, will not make successful farmers; but it will help us to discover the boys who can succeed in farming." "The farm calls for some scholarship, but more intelligence. The farmer must be a man of vision, a manager, a financier, a scientist; he may have culture, he must have fibre; he may have refinement, he must have brains." "No system of education has ever been devised, or ever will be, that can take a roomful of boys and make them all orators, or all musicians, or all philosophers, or all farmers."

A feature of the Lincoln club banquet in Portland was roast Bull Moose. This came in with the post prandial exercises. Judge Deasy was the chief of the occasion, and used plenty of spice and high seasoning. In conclusion he said, with impressiveness and force:

"If the time ever comes when the right of determining what the law is and what it has been, is taken away from an independent and fearless judiciary and vested in the masses of the people not sworn to the performance of any duty, having no duty beyond the gratification of their own sweet will . . . then the government which our fathers brought forth upon this continent nearly seven score years ago, the form and kind of government that Abraham Lincoln knew, that he loved and that he saved, will have indeed perished from the face of the earth."

The Mexican problem is a serious one for this country; and the New York World, Democratic, says: "Mr. Taft is dealing wisely and patriotically with the Mexican crisis. It is the duty of every honest man to uphold the President's hands." The World fears that if the United States is compelled to send its army into Mexico to conquer peace that that army will never be withdrawn; that "we should have a Mexican problem for at least a century; with a huge standing army to police 700,000 square miles of territory inhabited by a hostile and alien population." The World recognizes, however, as every one must, the responsibility the Monroe doctrine imposes upon this country; a responsibility that cannot be evaded. We have not only to protect the lives and property of our own citizens but the lives and property of the citizens of other countries. If we fail to do this, some other nation will step in, and that would mean the virtual abandonment of the Monroe doctrine by this country. "But intervention," says the World, "must always be regarded as a last resort, and that is the attitude of President Taft. If intervention comes it will come because Mexico has compelled it, not because the United States desires it; but it will be complete and effective. Mexico as a nation will have committed suicide."

Flood in Indiana. Freeze in California. The Public Schools of San Jose, etc.

Mrs. E. O. Patterson has sent us some news of a recent flood in Jeffersonville, Indiana, and says in a personal note: "It certainly was a sad sight in most cases and everyone was very anxious. They have a set of gates to close and keep the sewers closed, but this time the water seemed to rush up in every place until the streets were nearly covered. Fire engines were working day and night to keep the water out, and it finally fell and now the river is as usual. We have had no cold weather until now. It is cold, but not down to zero. Last winter we had snow and heavy ice all winter from November 12th, and had an ice gorge in front of our house that did great damage. So you see we have all kinds of experiences, but we like it here, and are both very well. Expect to go east in the spring for a trip." The views show the hotel on the river front, where Capt. and Mrs. Patterson are living; St. Paul's church (Episcopal) with the street in front flooded, and on the reverse Mrs. Patterson had written: "We could not get to the church for ten days," a view opposite the shipyard, where Capt. Patterson has a boat that was entirely submerged except the top rail, and a view of the Louisville Veneer Mills plant just across the river.

F. W. Gray, superintendent of the Leffingwell Ranch, Whittier, California, writes: "This has been the coldest winter I have experienced during my 27 years residence here, and the loss of fruit and setback to the trees will be very heavy on this Ranch. In the old lemon grove of 100 acres we had seven thousand five hundred cold baskets going the coldest night and burned about four cars of coal, which was pretty expensive; but we saved the trees and a large percentage of the fruit. But our younger groves, which were not equipped to smudge, suffered badly. A good many ranchers here thought they were in the frostless belt, but old Jack Frost surely hit below the belt this time."

From Mr. Fred W. Angier The Journal has received the pictorial school number of the San Jose, (Calif.) Municipal Record. This is a monthly publication issued in the interest of the taxpayers of San Jose under the direction of the mayor and common council. On the front cover is a view of the San Jose High school and views of the Longfellow, Horace Mann, Grant and Lowell school buildings. Among other views is one of the Gardner school, a four-room open air school, of which it is said: "San Jose now has three such convertible open air schools. All of the outside walls, except that on the north, can be pushed up from the floor line into the attic and thus permit of open air rooms. The extent to which these rooms are opened up depends entirely upon the weather, but even on cold days they are heated, thus allowing the open air features to be taken advantage of, though to a less degree than on warm days. These open air schools are commended alike by parents, teachers and people generally." These open air schools would hardly be feasible here, especially at this time, but it is interesting to know of their use elsewhere. There are illustrations of the drawing room, physics room, chemistry room, manual arts room and commercial room of the San Jose High school; the cooking rooms and manual arts rooms in each of the grammar schools; of an exhibit of woodwork done in the High school in pattern making, wood turning, joinery, cabinet making and house construction; an exhibit of woodwork done in the grammar schools; of some of the steel playground apparatus to the rear of the grammar school—each school has its giant stride, horizontal ladder, swings, seesaws, slides, sandbox, etc.—an exhibit of work done in the High school in stenciling, block printing, leather, jewelry, copper, clay modeling, wood carving, book binding, weaving and basketry. This gives an idea of the education afforded along practical lines in the schools of San Jose, and the buildings and their equipments are up to date in every particular. A new and novel feature is the free dental infirmary, operated by the San Jose school department in one of the school buildings. It is for children whose parents cannot afford to pay for the services of a dentist, and 28 San Jose dentists have devoted one-half day every two months to the handling of these cases, and have handled 219 children during the past year, filling all their teeth that required attention. As a result of this agitation over 1,000 children went to their own family dentists and had the work done.

From a personal letter from Mr. C. E. Perkins, who is well known throughout Waldo county and in eastern Maine as one of the leading merchants at that popular summer resort, Northport campground, we quote as follows: "We are here in Boston once more for a good time, after a strenuous but most successful season's business at dear old Northport, and contemplate returning to Maine March 13th with a complete stock of up-to-date goods and shall endeavor to lessen the present high cost of living in and around our beautiful old town of Northport. While here, and especially in Somerville, we have seen many nice people who visit Northport yearly. One never

Knees Became Stiff

Five Years of Severe Rheumatism
The cure of Henry J. Goldstein, 14 Barton Street, Boston, Mass., is another victory by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine has succeeded in many cases where others have utterly failed. Mr. Goldstein says: "I suffered from rheumatism five years, it kept me from business and caused excruciating pain. My knees would become as stiff as steel. I tried many medicines without relief, then took Hood's Sarsaparilla, soon felt much better, and now consider myself completely cured. I recommend Hood's. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs."

gets lonesome for there is always "something else to do." And perhaps it would be best to prescribe for my friends, in case while in Boston they have that hungry feeling. The prescription is very simple. It is: "Go to Childs, 607 Washington street." You will find the management there O. K., the food most excellent, and last, but not least, the waitresses, many in number, sufficient to serve at least 500 people at one time. They are a class of very intelligent, clean, and exceptionally good looking young ladies, with just enough snap and twinkle to inform you that they are there for the purpose of serving you without delay; consequently the service is fine. Now in closing, we will repeat, "Go to Childs in time of hunger."

The Delta Alpha class of the Baptist Sunday school was delightfully entertained last Friday evening by their teacher, Mrs. Walter F. Sturtevant, at a Valentine party at her home on Union street. The girls read their fortunes from small heart-shaped papers, which revealed many accomplishments. A Valentine cone was enjoyed, in which the missing words in Valentine verses written on hearts worn by each were guessed. The four girls who guessed them all were presented with handsome Valentines, and Valentine postals were given the others. Some original Valentines were written and afforded much amusement. Cocoa, cake and fancy cookies were served, and the guests departed feeling indebted to their hostess for a pleasant evening.

At the first of the series of Lenten services at the North (Congregational) church, last Thursday evening, Principal Clarence W. Proctor of the Belfast High school gave a fine address on "Religion and Education." He spoke of the relation of the morals and ethics of religion to education and gave an outline of a course of study which might be given in connection with the four years High school course, citing what has been and is being done along these lines in other places. His address was not only very interesting but most instructive and Belfast should be congratulated on having such a man at the head of its High school. At the service this, Thursday, evening Adelbert Millett, M. D., will speak on Religion and Health. The public is cordially invited to attend the series.

OBITUARY.

Linwood Dana French, born November 18, 1899, only child of Mr. Charles H. and Mrs. Nellie S. (Bartlett) French of Waldo, died on February 12, 1913, after a long and painful illness of rheumatic fever, during which he received the untiring and devoted care of both parents, and was attended by Dr. H. A. Woods of Belfast. He was but thirteen years of age on his last birthday, yet he had already formed a character of such sterling worth that in looking back over his short life we almost feel it must have been ordained from the very beginning, that having spent here his life's little day in making glad the hearts of his parents and friends he should pass on, still "unsponsored from the world," to await the coming of his dear ones in the land where "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain." Conscientious in all the dealings of his young life, of strongly religious tendencies, loving his parents with all the quiet depth and earnestness of his nature, he was a chum and close companion to them both; uniformly kind and thoughtful in his school life, which was at Citypoint, studious and faithful in his studies, he was a favorite with teacher and scholars. In his contact with older people he was always courteous and was accorded by all who knew him a respect and loving consideration seldom shown to one so young; and his grief-stricken parents have the warm sympathy of the many who mourn his loss with them. Of his family, besides his parents, he is survived by his aged grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Bartlett of Waldo; three uncles, Wm. B. Bartlett of West Winterport, Fred L. Bartlett of North Belfast and Loan Bartlett of Waldo. One aunt, Mrs. William (French) Fuller of Bangor, and one cousin, Chas. Bartlett of West Winterport. The funeral was held at noon on Saturday, the Rev. D. B. Phelan of Belfast officiating. The floral tributes from his friends and schoolmates were many and were very beautiful. The interment was at the Hadley cemetery in Waldo, and the bearers were six of his schoolmates, Edward Sawyer, Fletcher L. Whitcomb, Sidney Knowlton, Keith Creasey, Clarence Roberts and Leslie Keach.

Ellen Moulton, wife of Ex-Senator James R. Taber, died at her home in Unity, Maine, on February 7, 1913, aged seventy-one years. Mrs. Taber had been in poor health for two years and during the last few weeks her strength had gradually failed, but at the last the end came unexpectedly owing to a sudden weakening of the heart. All that love and medical skill could do was done, but nothing could avail. The funeral was held at her home on Monday, February 10th. Rev. Chester B. Emerson, pastor of the Congregational Church in Saco, Maine, who at one time lived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Taber, officiated, assisted by Rev. James Ainslie, and paid loving tribute to the life of Mrs. Taber—a life lived always with the thought of devotion and service to those she loved. Mrs. Taber leaves to mourn their loss her husband and two daughters, Nellie M., a teacher of music in Boston, and Vivian H., a student at Columbia University, New York; also a sister, Harriet Towle of Kansas. She had many friends in her home town who will miss her pleasant greeting at her husband's office where, when her health permitted, she was in the habit of spending an hour or two each day. Her life has been a life of service, triumphantly complete.

Loeine Gilkey, widow of the late Capt. Ephraim E. Pendleton, formerly of Belfast, died Feb. 11th at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William L. Wentworth of East Orland. She was born in Islesboro, Feb. 15, 1854, the daughter of the late Nelson and Angeline Gilkey. The greater part of her married life was spent in Belfast, her children were born and grew up here and she had many friends in this city who heard of her death with regret. She is survived by two daughters: Mrs. Pym L. Gilkey of Germantown, Pa., and Mrs. Wm. L. Wentworth of East Orland; by three step-sons, J. B. Pendleton of Winchester, Mass., J. L. Pendleton of Somerville, Mass., and George S. Pendleton of Providence, R. I., and by two brothers, Capt. Rocco P. Gilkey of Brewer and Lincoln N. Gilkey of Islesboro. The funeral service was held in the First Parish Unitarian church, Friday morning, at 11 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. Charles R. Ames officiating. The remains were placed in the receiving tomb at Grove cemetery, and in the spring will be laid beside her husband in the family lot. The bearers were Lincoln N. Gilkey, J. B. Pendleton, Pym L. Gilkey and William L. Wentworth.

Amanda M., wife of Samuel G. Stinson died early Saturday morning, Feb. 15th, at her home, 83 Congress street, after a long and severe illness. She was born in Newport Sept. 3, 1825—the daughter of the late William and Betsy Snow Main, and is the last of her father's family. She was a devoted wife and mother and true to the best interests in life, an interested member of the W. C. T. U. and a faithful member of the Baptist church, always attending when able. She leaves, besides her husband, two daughters, a son and a grandson: Addie F., wife of Dr. Frederick H. Daniels, and Miss Lena E. Stimpson, both of Batavia, Ill. Walter W., who carries on the home place and has made a home for his aged parents, and Harry H. Stimpson of Portland. The family, with the exception of her daughter Lena, who is ill, were present at the funeral, which took place at her late home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. W. F. Sturtevant officiating.

The funeral of Tileston Wadlin was held at his late home, 148 High street, at 2 p. m., Feb. 13th, and the attendance was very large. The Waldo county bar was present in a body, with city and county officials, business and professional men and a host of personal friends, all evidencing their grief at the loss of one universally loved and esteemed. Four clergymen, former pastors of the Belfast Methodist church, took part in the services. Rev. Montford S. Hill of Hartland made the address, and was assisted by Rev. D. B. Phelan of Belfast, Rev. E. Edgett of Rockland and Rev. Albert E. Luce of Dexter. The bearers were Messrs. Charles P. Hazeltine, Amos F. Carleton, M. C. Hill and R. T. Rankin. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers.

Miss R. T. Newell has received a letter from Mrs. Sarah Bartlett Price, Napton, Mo., asking for information about the ancestors of her grandfather, Wm. Bartlett, who was born in Belfast, July 3, 1803, lived in Seaside, and who married Avis Crockett of Thomaston.

The letter says: "My grandfather's (Wm. Bartlett) mother was Ruth Waterman. I do not know my great grandfather's given name. I wish to know the name of the grandfather who was in the Revolution, when born, when died, when he married, her birth and death and date of marriage, in what company he served, and under whom." Miss Newell would be glad to hear from any one who can give the desired information.

Some years ago the writer had a narrow escape from death because of the failure of the engineer on an extra train to whistle at one of the many blind and unguarded crossings on the Belfast branch, and the memory of the sensation as the engine whizzed by, just clearing the carriage wheels, is not a pleasant one. Consequently when it happens, as it did one night last week, that an extra train comes and goes silently, giving no warning except the rattle of machinery and the rush of wheels, we feel that the public has a right to complain. It may be that the engineer is considerate and does not wish to awaken people living along the railroad, but surely it were better to awaken many people by the screech of a midnight locomotive, than by its silence to bring to even one of them "the sleep that knows no waking."

WINTER BIRDS. Rev. R. G. Harbutt of Buxton, Me., a lover and student of nature, sends the following interesting note to the Portland Press. We were glad to see what he says about the robins, as many persist in the belief that these birds always go south in the fall, and hail their reappearance as a harbinger of spring:

A recent reference to robins having been seen may give interest to the fact that Feb. 10th, on the way from Saco to Portland by electric, I saw two blackbirds (not black birds, please, and not crows) perched on maples very near the road side. I may say also that a week ago I saw a flock, say, half a dozen or more, of birds that looked like catbirds, though one could hardly think it. Slate gray above, and lighter gray beneath. They might have been shrikes, but the brief glimpse did not allow size quite of shrike, nor markings. I think they were not. Is it mild winter or early spring? Today I saw a pine siskin near the house, but he is a winter resident.

Robins have been seen in several towns, and it is not necessary to suppose they were grobebeaks. There are robins in the deep woods any winter, and when we have a mild season they readily come into the open. I have seen as many as perhaps twenty thus flying about in one flock on the outskirts of the woods in a mild winter. But I am most interested to know what those darkish slate colored birds were. Maybe shrike, and nothing unusual.

The house of Leland Robbins at the Head of the Tide caught fire last Thursday night from an over-heated stove and despite the efforts of Chemical No. 1 of that district was a total loss with but small insurance. The house was not fully completed, but Mr. Robbins and family were occupying it and he worked on it in his spare time. The night was one of the coldest of the season, but Mrs. Robbins and infant were cared for by neighbors. It was a hard night to be burned out and much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Robbins.

This branch of work had not been taken up by the Houlton club, but a committee, of which Mrs. C. G. Ferguson formerly of this city is chairman, has been appointed to organize an arts and crafts department. Mrs. Pierce speaks very highly of the beautiful needle work displayed by the Houlton women, the exhibits filling nine large tables and much wall space. The work was exquisite. Quantities of crochet and Irish point also were shown. The local florists also had wonderful exhibits. The first food fair to be held by the Houlton club was given at this time. The Taliaferros are well known summer residents, and their many friends hope they may succeed in regaining their stolen property.

The Journal is indebted to Mr. C. G. Ferguson of Houlton for a late issue of the Aroostook Pioneer containing an article on the "Fifth Week of the Strike." It says the mail and passenger trains are most unsatisfactory for the business men of the county, and that Houlton merchants are being hit hard. In conclusion The Pioneer says:

Farmers are holding their potatoes at the price remains at one dollar. There are the stacks of barrels in the county that should be moved but the road cannot furnish cars. If the trouble continues until April there is fear that considerable of the stock will begin to "sweat."

John Carlson and John Decker, both of Seasideport, for some time engineers on the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, but who have been on strike since Jan. 17th, were arraigned in the Municipal Court, before Judge Wayland Knowlton Feb. 14th, charged with violating the State law against threats, intimidation or inducing to leave employment in time of strike. The respondents were represented by H. C. Buzzell of Belfast and Benjamin W. Blanchard of Bangor. Robert F. Dunton of Belfast appeared for the State. The two cases were tried together, by agreement of counsel. Christopher T. Everett of New York, now running as engineer on the Seasideport Branch, testified that Carlson endeavored to induce him not to go to work and made threats against him. Clifton Ward of Seasideport, a fireman, made similar charges against Decker. Carlson and Decker took the stand in their own behalf, and denied that they had made any threats, and Carlson that he had offered a bribe. Winfield H. Stubbs, a conductor, George Carter, Harold F. Strout, Gould Flinton and Hamilton Flinton, all of Seasideport, were called by the defense and said there had been no trouble or disturbance around the Seasideport yard. Judge Knowlton said that the action was beyond the jurisdiction of his court and he should hold respondents for the higher court. He fixed the bonds at $600 in each case. F. I. Mortland of Seasideport and Capt. J. W. Jones of Belfast, qualified in each case.

A RAILROAD STRIKE CASE. John Carlson and John Decker, both of Seasideport, for some time engineers on the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, but who have been on strike since Jan. 17th, were arraigned in the Municipal Court, before Judge Wayland Knowlton Feb. 14th, charged with violating the State law against threats, intimidation or inducing to leave employment in time of strike. The respondents were represented by H. C. Buzzell of Belfast and Benjamin W. Blanchard of Bangor. Robert F. Dunton of Belfast appeared for the State. The two cases were tried together, by agreement of counsel. Christopher T. Everett of New York, now running as engineer on the Seasideport Branch, testified that Carlson endeavored to induce him not to go to work and made threats against him. Clifton Ward of Seasideport, a fireman, made similar charges against Decker. Carlson and Decker took the stand in their own behalf, and denied that they had made any threats, and Carlson that he had offered a bribe. Winfield H. Stubbs, a conductor, George Carter, Harold F. Strout, Gould Flinton and Hamilton Flinton, all of Seasideport, were called by the defense and said there had been no trouble or disturbance around the Seasideport yard. Judge Knowlton said that the action was beyond the jurisdiction of his court and he should hold respondents for the higher court. He fixed the bonds at $600 in each case. F. I. Mortland of Seasideport and Capt. J. W. Jones of Belfast, qualified in each case.

The Yacht Wanderer.

Former Rockland Boy's Recollections of the Fastest Sailing Vessel of Her Time. (From the Rockland Courier-Gazette.)

In a recent issue of this paper appeared an item, copied from The Belfast Journal, referring to the yacht Wanderer. It has called forth a communication from a former Rockland boy, Albert C. Tibbetts, now of Eureka, California. By way of introduction the Belfast paper's item is reprinted:

"Meeting Capt. Royal W. Warren on the water front a short time ago the subject of yachts came up and he recalled the fact that the once noted yacht Wanderer had loaded potatoes at this port for Savannah and made the voyage out in heavy weather under storm sails. He also spoke of her having been rebuilt at Rockland, and of the care that was taken to preserve the original model. The Wanderer was built at Setauket, L. I., in 1857, and a picture of her at the time in Harper's Weekly shows her as a two-topmast schooner, with a long hollow bow and strong sheer. She was no doubt the fastest sailing craft of her class in her day; but later marine architects have wholly discarded hollow water lines. The original owner sold the Wanderer to a Capt. Corrie of South Carolina and she is supposed to have engaged in the slave trade and to have landed a cargo of slaves in the Savannah river; but there is a mystery as to her movements for a number of years. She is said to have been in the possession of the government at one time, but the writer has no reliable information as to that, or her final fate. The name is a common one for vessels, and we find in the government list for 1877 the schooner yacht Wanderer of 97.01 tons, hailing from New York; but the list of those days did not give the place where built, and it would seem that the original Wanderer must have been a larger craft, although that was a good size for a yacht fifty-odd years ago."

"This clipping from The Courier-Gazette of Jan. 21st" (writes Mr. Tibbetts) "takes me back a few years" to the time when the famous vessel became a part of Rockland's fleet. This was in the summer of 1865 or '66.

"Coming from Portland on the good schooner Mary Brewer, with a light, fair wind, we had got on somewhere about Herring Gut (I think you now call it Port Clyde) when a big fore-and-aft came out from anchorage, headed up the bay, and in a very short time was out of sight. After coming to anchor at Rockland, stowing sails and coming ashore at Spear's wharf, we found the Wanderer tied up at the Snow (or Farnsworth) wharf, with little water around her, so she must have been at the dock several hours before we arrived. The Wanderer certainly could sail!

"Having been placed in service by the government in Southern waters, during the Civil War, she was sold after its close to the Snows of Rockland and was brought to the port by Capt. Joshua Rowe, who commanded her for some time thereafter. Shortly after coming to Rockland she was put on for an excursion to the campground at Northport, to sail from what was then known as the Old Steamboat wharf. Upon the day appointed, the Wanderer made sail from Atlantic wharf, to shift docks. When rounding to for a landing on the east side of the Old Steamboat wharf, the vessel was either going faster than the master figured on, or failed to answer her helm as quickly as he expected, and so went into the wharf almost at right angles. She went into the structure a long way, her jibboom clearing the sail-loft building, and resisted all efforts to get her back and clear of the wharf. After the tide had fallen a good deal she slid out of the mess herself, breaking her bowsprit short off at the knight-heads.

"The excursion being off, the vessel was taken to the South Marine Railway for repairs. Later examination showed her to be very rotten in places and eventually she was hauled out on the railway and almost entirely rebuilt. Originally the Wanderer had a V stern, similar to that of many yachts of her day. In rebuilding, this was replaced by practically a round stern; otherwise the hull of the vessel presented its former appearance. In repairing the mainmast was stepped farther aft, giving a bigger fore-sail and reducing length of the main boom. After this change her rig was not as gently as formerly.

"While going into St. Thomas, D. W. I., with a load, the Wanderer struck on a reef, losing her keel, and considerable money was spent on repairs. I think this was soon after she was rebuilt. The Wanderer and the schooner Israel Snow (ex-Pembroke) were employed for a time in wrecking the British ship Guy Mannering, which went ashore somewhere around Matineus and was sold as she lay to the Snows. At this time the Wanderer was commanded by Capt. Isaac Thomas Ingraham and the Israel Snow by Capt. Hiram Pillsbury. The latter vessel was afterward employed as a frigate.

"What use was made of the Wanderer after the spring of 1868 I do not remember, but the Snows owned her as late as 1868 or '70, as at that time C. W. Snow was visiting San Francisco and made inquiry as to chances for sale of the vessel to parties engaged in the Tahiti fruit trade. Later I noted the sale of the Wanderer to Philadelphia parties who placed her in the South American trade; later still I read where she went ashore somewhere around Cape Hatteras, becoming a total loss.

"The Wanderer was a large yacht, 260 tons old measurement, and after rebuilding, when the present measurement came in vogue, something like 180 tons net. Forty or more years ago I met a Dane at this place who told me that he was a member of the Wanderer's crew during one of her sailing voyages. He is still living in Eureka, and I see him quite frequently.

"The Courier-Gazette's Twenty-Five Years Ago column is a little too recent for my Rockland recollections, but an item like this one often appears in your pages to revive memories of old times. I think my uncle, William Farrow, was running the sail-loft on the old wharf that the Wanderer crashed into and he will probably remember the circumstances. When the Civil War broke out, the government was without a sufficiency of suitable steam vessels for blockade service and put a number of fast sailers at the work. The Wanderer had been taken by the government while sailing. My recollection of my trip North is, that sailing from Mobile I think the same time as a steamer, she arrived at Rockland the same day the steamer reached New York. In her time the Wanderer was considered the fastest sailing vessel afloat."

Parents, Read this Letter!

I have a letter from a prominent Maine clergyman in regard to a sickness of one of his children from which I quote as follows:

"Our two-year-old baby was very sick at two different times and we came near losing her. We had the best doctors, but they did not know what the trouble was. In the first sickness she had high fever for several days, and the doctor said it acted like scarlet fever, but as there were no other cases he did not think it could be. Afterwards she broke out in a rash all over her body. The last sickness was similar and the doctor was puzzled. She was very nervous and we feared we would lose her. You Dr. True's Elixir was recommended, and after two days' use she passed several worms from two to three inches in length, and is now well and strong and sleeps at nights without fretting, tossing and starting in a fright as she did formerly."

N. B.—True's Elixir is the best known remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles. Purely vegetable, pleasant to take and entirely harmless. Expels stomach worms and pin worms. All dealers, 35c; 50c; $1.00.

Yours for better health,

Uncle Sam's Women Flag-Makers.

Writing in the issue of Harper's Weekly for February 15th, Walter L. Beasley describes the work of a group of fifty expert needlewomen, who yearly make some 20,000 flags for the United States Government. These flags are the varied ones that our battleships are required to have on board at all times. They consist of flags for ordinary use, signal flags, the international code, and the flag of every foreign nation. Four hundred and eighty is the regulation number of flags that each of our large war vessels must carry.

ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN.

Emancipation. His Chief Glory.

Under the auspices of the Boston Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a meeting to commemorate the birthday of Lincoln was held in the Park St. Church Feb. 12th. Bishop John W. Hamilton presided and introduced Ex-Atty. Gen. Albert E. Pillsbury, who spoke on "Lincoln, the Emancipator." He said:

"When the conflict between freedom and slavery in this Nation was approaching the crisis, in the struggle for possession of the Nebraska territory, a new and strange figure appeared at the front of battle in the West, passed across the world's stage, and in the short space of seven years vanished from the sight of man.

"Within these narrow bounds of time was a career the like of which is not to be found in history. In the elements of wonder and romance the whole story of Abraham Lincoln's life and death is without parallel or example. From the mean shack in the Kentucky woods to the final peak of transfiguration, it moves in the successive acts of a great tragic drama, reaching the high-water mark of human achievement and sounding every note in the gamut of human emotion.

"He was a man of many mysteries, but his hold upon mankind is not a mystery. Abraham Lincoln was an unspoiled product of nature to which all the world is akin. No other historic character strikes the eye with great and illustrious deeds so stirring the heart with every element of human sympathy. The plainest of common men, he mounted to the pinnacle of greatness without leaving one of his homely traits behind him, and humanity has taken him for a brother.

"When all his other greatness is forgotten he will be remembered in legend, if not in history, as emancipator of a race and martyr of freedom. For this he is receiving, and he will continue to receive, the homage of the world.

"What did Lincoln think about slavery before he became a public character? 'I always hated slavery,' This repeated testimony is from a man slow to censure and not a man of hate. 'Slavery is not wrong, nothing is wrong'—the deadliest judgment upon slavery ever put in words since John Wesley denounced the 'sum of all villainies.' 'I cannot remember the time,' he says, 'when I did not so think and feel.'

"The psychology of Abraham Lincoln, preceminently a man of the spirit, is not yet explored. Yet of all historic personages he can be understood least without looking into his soul. A man of complete sincerity, the motives of his life are written there, and there they must be read.

"On the subject of human bondage his soul is an open book. The epic of his life is crowned with that solemn declaration in his last address to the Nation, revealing the faith that guided him as he moved 'with malice toward none, with charity for all,' but steadfast and resolute, to the task of achieving for his country the new birth of freedom invoked on the field of Gettysburg.

"When all the rest is forgotten his part in human liberty will be remembered, and in whatever age or quarter of the world freedom lifts her head, she will turn for new inspiration to this her son, dead in her cause and living forever in her memory."

WORKS WONDERS For Worms in Children.

The diseases of childhood are often hard to interpret. A nervous condition, restless at night, an abnormally large appetite or sometimes none, may indicate worms. In such cases a teaspoonful of "L. F." Atwood's Medicine at night and a small dose before a light breakfast the following morning is harmless, and will settle all doubt about worms being the cause. Many mothers already know this. One of them writes:—"My little boy, aged 6, has never been without 'L. F.' Atwood's Medicine since he was two, and I have found it invaluable for Worms, Constipation, etc."

EARNEST ADVICE

However painful, however stubborn your rheumatism may be, even if the disease is of long standing and many remedies have failed, do not despair, but give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. The rheumatic poison is in the blood, and it defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. Rubbing something on your skin will not drive it out. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills attack the disease at its root, in the blood, and rheumatism cured in this way stays cured.

Mr. Charles B. Montgomery, of Packer, Conn., who cured himself of rheumatism with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills tells his experience, as follows: "After my discharge from the army in 1898, I suffered terribly from rheumatic pains and numbness. At times the numbness was very bad and greatly alarmed me. The rheumatic pains were in the joints of my left arm and leg and invariably followed a numbness which was the first indication of the rheumatism. My left foot was swollen and sore, so much so, that I could not lace my shoes sometimes. At times I was practically helpless for two or three weeks. The pains in my arm and leg were sharp and cutting. I tried all known medicines and saw little if any benefit from their treatment. I finally ordered a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the second box showed great benefit. A few more boxes were all that were needed to make me entirely well."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per box or six boxes for $2.50, or direct by mail, postpaid, upon receipt of price by the

Another Big Towboat.

One of the largest towboats on the Atlantic coast is to be constructed by the Portland Co., according to an announcement made last week. The craft is to be built for the Commercial Towboat Co. of Boston, and her contract price, equipped, is to be about $95,000. The new boat is to be 142.9 feet long, 26.6 feet beam, will have a depth of 15.11 feet and a draft of 14.6 feet. In model she will be a duplicate of the Charles W. Parker, built two years ago, only much larger. Work is to begin immediately on the craft and the contract calls for her completion in 17-12 months. She will be fitted with steam steering gear, electric lights and everything known to the modern towboat. The hull is to be built by the Cobb, Butler Co. of Rockland, and she will then be taken to Portland for her boilers and equipment.

Thirty-seven vessels, aggregating 18,156 tons, were built on the Atlantic and Gulf, and 27, aggregating 5,032 tons, on the Pacific coast. The large steel steam vessels were the Santa Cruz, 5,810 tons, built at Philadelphia; the Norfolk, 3,521 tons at Camden, N. J.; Oliver J. Farmer's Distributing Station.

The Central Maine Farmers' Exchange has adopted plans for a distributing station in Waterville. The plan is backed by C. E. Embree, manager of the Farmers' Union of Maine, and other prominent workers. The appropriation of the National organization will be $1000, to be divided into 100 shares; and 25 of these shares were sold immediately. By having a distributing station here members can have carload lots of flour, beef, grain, fertilizer, and eventually farming tools, brought directly to their homes. The exchange is negotiating for a building on Sanger Ave., near the freight depot.

Mysteries of the Sea.

Back Remittent, Abandoned, Full-rigged and Provisioned—Not a Sign of the Crew. The Case of the Marie Celeste. The Fate of Sch. S. P. Blackburn.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 5. Another mystery of the deep, practically paralleling the unexplained disappearance of the crew of the schooner Marie Celeste several years ago, has come to port here with the British tank steamer Rumanian.

On Jan. 19, churning along 10 days out from Port Arthur and near the Azores, she picked up the Norwegian bark Remittent, seaworthy, provisioned and fully rigged, but without a soul aboard and no indication of the crew's fate.

The Rumanian, after towing the Remittent to within 100 miles of Cape Henry, lost her in a violent gale.

The Marie Celeste was found at sea with a pot boiling in her galley and her captain's papers on the cabin table and every indication that souls were aboard within a few hours of her discovery. But nothing ever was heard of her skipper or crew.

VESSEL RUNNING WILD.

The Rumanian sighted the Remittent in lat. 40 deg. 30 min., and lon. 27 deg. 30 min., riding a heavy swell without a hand to guide her before a freshening breeze. The big tank steamer's crew's net immediately reported her as a ship out of control, and Capt. Claridge set out in pursuit.

While the Rumanian was coming up on her the Remittent, with the tiller banging to and fro and blocks a trundling over her decks, was running wild in dashes and bounds, first to one point of the compass and then to another.

The Rumanian lowered boats to take a line and capture the bark. After more than an hour's jockeying, during which the Remittent sailed in swoops and dashes, now stopping dead, a tremble in the eye of the wind and then bounding away to the eastward, what canvas was unfurled, the pursuing small boat finally caught her coming around broadside on and boarded her.

Her deck planks, once swabbed and holly-stoned to a gleaming white, bore the marks of many feet, but there was nothing to explain the disappearance of her master and crew.

In her cabin some odds and ends rolled in the corners with the rolling of the ship; the lock-fast places were undisturbed; her charts and papers were secure.

In her water breaker there was a full supply of fresh water; salt junk and biscuits in her stores. A mainsail and two jibs were snugly furled and her lifeboats swung and groaned in the davits.

The Rumanian's boarders bent a hawser to their prize and took her in tow. A few hours later the pair ran into gales which lost the tank steamer's consort, but not until after a valiant fight to save her, and brought the steamer into port here with the scars of red rust and salt of a rough experience to show for her work.

LEFT RIO GRANDE DEL SUL.

The steamer and her salvage bowled along together in fairly favorable weather for several days and in the blow, which they met 100 miles off Cape Henry, Capt. Claridge lost the Remittent.

At the end of the long heavy hawser the bark plunged along in the gale, first rising up as if she had been stung and then lying down as if she were about to die and in one of her flights she snapped the line and blew away from her rescuer.

Twice the Rumanian attempted to launch boats to carry a new line and each time they were crushed against her side by heavy seas and their crews narrowly escaped drowning. Capt. Claridge finally gave it up and made for port, leaving the Remittent riding out the gale.

No other ship has reported her since. The Remittent was commanded by Capt. Torgerson and she sailed from Rio Grande del Sul Oct. 25th for Liverpool. She was of 351 tons, a comparatively small ship and probably carried in addition to her master a crew of five or six.

THE SCH. S. P. BLACKBURN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. The fate of the schooner S. P. Blackburn of Bath, Me., still is a mystery. The revenue cutter Onondaga today reported the vessel nowhere in the vicinity where she was last seen—240 miles east of Cape Hatteras. The Onondaga, used all her coal in a week's search and was obliged to return today to replenish her supply.

The cutter Seminole is still searching. When the Blackburn was dismasted by violent gales a week ago, the steamer Tiverton rescued nine men who had jumped overboard. Two who could not swim remained on the Blackburn. There was one small boat on the davits of the schooner. The steamer Espenanza boarded her a few days ago and reported her abandoned and the small boat missing. It is thought the two men took the boat and the only hope seems to be that they were picked up by a passing vessel.

An Adventurous Voyage.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10. After 425 days of adventurous voyaging, the 85-foot galeone yacht Edris, long believed to have been lost along the coast of South Africa, dropped anchor here yesterday. The Edris, the property of Captain John Barneson, a wealthy oil operator, left New York with a crew of six men in command of Captain Mills. Captain Mills had difficulty in getting through the Straits of Magellan and gave up his command. He was succeeded by Captain Cameron, who brought the craft to port, the same crew remaining throughout the voyage. The voyagers told of many narrow escapes from death.

AN AMATEUR WHALER.

Deer Isle Men in Her Crew.

Schooner yacht Adventure, ss, built at a cost of $50,000 for John Borden, millionaire of Chicago, for a whaling trip in the Arctic, reached Boston Feb. 11th, from Boothbay Harbor, Me., after a trip in which she got a taste of mild Arctic weather and a six-inch coat of ice. The owner made the trip, accompanied by B. B. Crowninshield of Boston, designer of the vessel; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Feeley of Dorchester and W. O. White of Boston. Owing to the accumulation of ice the Adventure was unable to anchor as planned and berthed alongside Long Wharf. Captain Fred D. West, whaling master of Provincetown, is in command.

Within a day or two the Adventure will leave for Bermuda with Mr. Borden and a party of friends. At Bermuda the owner will leave the craft, which will then be stocked for the 100-day voyage around Cape Horn to Seattle. Mr. Borden will make the trip overland and plans to start on the whaling trip to Wrangell Island in June. The trip will extend over several months, and sperm whales will be the particular quarry. After returning to Seattle Mr. Borden plans a trip to Japanese waters.

The Adventure is 107 feet long, 20 feet beam and of 13 feet draft. She is a two-masted vessel of semi-knock-about auxiliary type, and equipped with a super whaling outfit, including life-line hoisting and refrigerating apparatus. She was built by Rice Brothers at Boothbay Harbor, and launched about ten days ago. She carries a crew of eight.—Boston Transcript.

A racing yacht, or a cruising yacht of any size, is sure to have in her officers and crew citizens of Deer Isle. The engineer of the Adventure is Jasper R. Haskell of Deer Isle. Norman Gray, Theron and Jack Bray have shipped in her as sailors and William Raynes of Sunset as second mate.

CONCERNING CONCRETE ROADS.

In Knox county they have grown tired of concrete highways. The people don't like 'em because they are too slippery and horses are all the time fall n-down. Particularly are they saying things about the "trunk line" between Rockland and Rockport. Here cement has been used and it has caused no end of trouble to teamsters. The residents of the county want the road fixed so that it will be safe for travel. Senator Packard of Knox has presented a resolve in the legislature to appropriate $4000 for this purpose. The statement of facts which accompanies the resolve says that the slippery condition of the concrete surface of the road between Rockland and Rockport makes it unsafe for team traffic. The highway department treated the section in 1912 with bitumen and sand with very satisfactory results. The entire length of road should be treated in practically the same manner. The cost is estimated at from 7 1/2 to 8 1/2 cents a square yard. A petition of Thomas A. Hunt and 72 others favoring the appropriation accompanies the resolve.

THE FINANCIAL OUTLOOK.

Maine's Revenue and Estimated Expenditures For The Next Two Years.

A statement of the financial outlook of the State for the next two years has been issued by the committee on appropriations and financial affairs. It is largely the work of Representative Marston of Skowhegan, secretary of the committee, and Senator Emery of Sanford, its chairman, who, together with State Auditor Callahan, have been collecting the data for the past two weeks. The statement follows:

The total expenditures of the last administration amounted to $9,885,259.90, of which $427,000 was for the purchase of unmatured bonds, and $384,000 was for the payment of unpaid warrants. The total income from all sources amounted to $10,206,565.22, including the State tax of 11 mills, assessed in 1910 and 1911, but not collected or available until 1911 and 1912.

The present administration starts in with $457,128.65 in the treasury, and a State tax of 4 mills, assessed in 1912 and available for 1913, which will bring, together with the income from all other sources, $4,659,033.29, making a total of $5,116,221.94, cash available for expenditure.

A very careful analysis of the book-records of the different departments and the auditor's office, for the fixed expense, and of the various bills and resolves before the several committees of the Legislature, indicates that the total expenditures of the State for the two years 1913 and 1914 will be at least $9,227,283.94. This estimate is based on the assumption that the appropriations made by this Legislature do not exceed the appropriations made by the last Legislature. Deducting the appropriations, which may vary greatly, depending on the attitude of the various committees, such as the appropriation for charitable institutions, the insane hospitals, schools for Feeble Minded, Industrial Schools, School for Boys, regional hospitals and University of Maine, leaves $7,748,451.16, which may almost be considered the fixed expense of the State, because the appropriations which it includes are not likely to be greatly changed by this Legislature. The purely fixed expense of the State will not be altered by the Legislature amounts to $7,091,451.16.

If this Legislature fixes the State tax for 1914 at 4 per cent., the total resources of the State for 1913 and 1914, including cash in the treasury, it is estimated will amount to $9,855,315.23. If the State tax is assessed at 4 1/2 mills, the total resources would be $10,041,415.45; if at 5 mills for 1914, $10,333,507.87.

Disregarding the $457,128.65 cash in the treasury, Jan. 1, 1913, and leaving the treasury empty, Jan. 1, 1915, there would be available for the appropriation by this Legislature in excess of the amount of the legislative appropriations in 1911, with a 4 mill tax for 1914, the sum of $176,902.64; with a 4 1/2 mill tax, $409,995.85; and with a 5 mill tax in 1914, $649,995.98.

It is interesting to note that two institutions alone are asking more than enough, in excess of their appropriations for 1911 and 1912, to consume all of this $649,995.98, which would be available with a 5 mill tax assessed in 1913 and collected in 1914. The amounts asked for by the various institutions are over 300 per cent. more than would be available with a 5 mill tax for 1914.

RECENT DEATHS.

Mrs. Edna Doris Jordan, formerly of West Liberty, daughter of Mrs. Mary F. Turner, died at her home in Albion, Feb. 8, 1913, of heart failure. She had been in poor health for some years, having undergone two surgical operations at the Lewiston General Hospital. She leaves a husband and two children, 4 and 8 years, respectively, a mother and three sisters. She has many friends in Liberty and Albion who mourn her loss.

The funeral of Mrs. Callie Crocker Luke, who died at her home in North Chelmsford, Mass., Feb. 2nd, was held Feb. 5th at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Crocker, at Sandpoint. Mrs. Luke was a long and patient sufferer. Loving hearts and hands did all they could to save the life so much needed, but God deemed it best to call her home. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, Mr. Orrin C. Luke, five children, one sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Leach of North Chelmsford, Mass., a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Crocker, and two sisters, Miss Bertha Crocker, and Mrs. Frank Heath of Sandpoint. It can truly be said that her life was a mirror of truth and purity, a life beautified by loving words and deeds. All who knew her loved her.

Hattie E. (Dyer) wife of Richard H. Burpee, president of the Barre Granite Co., died Feb. 9th at her home in Rockland, aged 48 years. Mrs. Burpee was a native of Stockton Springs and a daughter of Charles G. and Sarah F. (Speed) Dyer. The family moved to Owl's Head when she was about 8 years of age and became a prominent factor in that seafaring community. The father was lost at sea in the memorable November storm of 1888, and the broken-hearted mother joined him a few years later. Hattie was married to Mr. Burpee in November, 1889, and they had resided in Rockland ever since. The young bride became instantly a social favorite and the ensuing years found her a valued member of the Methuen Club, Miriam Rebekah Lodge and a number of whist clubs. She worked actively for the success of the Universalist church until about eight years ago, when she became a member of the First church of Christ, Scientist. About four years ago she sustained an injury to one of her ankles, which, after apparently disappearing, suddenly manifested itself again in such an alarming form that the entire limb was amputated in November. This was followed by a gradual decline in her general health, which she had quietly anticipated by making arrangements should the time when the fatal summons should have arrived.

No tribute to the deceased would be complete that did not take into account how unselfishly her whole life has been devoted to making others happy. Her first duty concerned her own home, which made an abode of domestic happiness for herself and husband. She placed all others before herself, and to many a home she carried cheer which will ever linger as a tender memory. Only a few weeks before her death there came to her a grateful letter from a colored friend whom she helped raise from a condition of illiteracy to a position of responsibility. And that message, which bore the promise of living a good life for her sake, brought comfort and a sense of reward above words. The lips now closed were never heard to utter an unkind word about others. Mrs. Burpee is survived by her husband, one sister, Miss Annette Dyer, now of Milford, Mass.; and two brothers, Capt. Charles E. and Elmer I. Dyer of Owl's Head.—Courier-Gazette.

DODGES CORNER. The item last week should have read "Mrs. Fred E. Stinson was very sick with bronchitis," instead of Mr. S. We are very glad to say that Mrs. Stinson continues to improve. Mr. George Harding, a former resident of Prospect, but for the past seven years residing in Massachusetts, is visiting his son Frank in Swanville. Mr. and Mrs. Bloomfield Reed of Mt. Well knowing Mrs. Black and her varied experience in such affairs, we can vouch for her ability and affable manner of presiding on such occasions.

The Geo. E. Merrill saw mill, recently bought by A. E. Trundy & Son, seems to have taken a new lease of life. In spite of the open winter and lack of snow the mill yard is piled full of logs and many teams are now hauling them onto the pond. It certainly looks like a busy place this spring. Many improvements have been added to the plant, which is now ready for business. Those having logs to sell can turn them into ready money. The Messrs. Trundy have moved their entire stock of building supplies and intend to conduct an up-to-date lumber yard. We are glad to see any of our young men located in their own town and wish them success.

In the write-up of the Searsport House in last week's issue of The Journal we overlooked two former proprietors—Stephen C. Cleaves and John Beak. The town records of Searsport show that at a town meeting held in the Methodist vestry for the purpose of selecting a site for the building of a town hall, with money donated by David Sears, that the meeting "adjourned to Beak's Tavern for dinner," etc. When the meeting assembled after dinner it was voted to buy the site where the old town house now stands of Capt. Jeremiah Merrihue, a prominent and well known citizen of Searsport in its early days. It is stated by some of the old timers who were in attendance that the meeting was very spirited. Nearly all of those present have passed away.

OBITUARY. Capt. Welcome Gilkey, a former well-known deep-water shipmaster of Searsport, passed away at the Sailor's Snug Harbor, New Brighton, N. Y., Feb. 9th. He was born in Islesboro, Oct. 22, 1823, the son of Capt. Philip and Deborah (Cushing) Gilkey. He came to Searsport with his parents when a child and passed his boyhood days here. At an early age he began to follow the sea and soon rose to the command of the topsail schooner "Royal Welcome," which his father built. His next command was the topsail schooner "Coral," which he commanded until the new brig T. P. Perkins was built for him in 1846 at the foot of Water street, when he relinquished the command of the Coral to his brother, Capt. Robert C. Gilkey, also of Searsport. After sailing the Perkins for several years he took command of the bark Malina, which he sailed until the new ship C. B. Hazeltine was built for him at Belfast in 1859. He sailed this ship for thirty years, engaged principally in the foreign trade. His last command was the barkentine Clara E. McGilvery of Searsport, which was wrecked in a tidal wave on the southern coast. Retiring from the sea he entered the Sailor's Snug Harbor, coming to Belfast in the summer season to visit his relatives. When a young man he married Miss Evalina, the daughter of Hugh Ross, Esq., of Searsport, who died about twenty years ago at Watertown, Mass. He is survived by their three daughters: Mrs. Deborah Horn of Watertown, Mass., Mrs. Emma Winn of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Malina A. Gilkey of Washington, D. C.

FIRST CONG'L. CHURCH NOTES. Those who attended church Sunday, February 16th, braved a northeast snowstorm. Notice was given of an offering next Sunday for the Maine Bible Society. This well known institution is of the greatest aid in the Christian work of our State. Going as its representatives do into every home in cities, towns and communities too small for churches they are able to come in close touch with many who could not otherwise be reached. The Bibles distributed are given where they cannot be purchased and when sold no profit is made. The society is supported entirely by the free will offerings of the people. The scripture lesson was the sixth chapter of first Timothy. Mr. McElhiney's sermon was on "The good fight of faith." Moral faith is a trust in God for the forgiveness of sins and is capable of changing the heart. Intellectual faith is usually a matter of serious thought resulting in credal opinion. Thus the word faith has come to have two meanings, the one having given rise to the other. Paul had in mind no doctrinal belief when exhorting Timothy to fight the good fight. With this ringing command he urges on those who have enlisted in Christian warfare. The term of service is long and the victory hard to win, but to those who in spite of snares and pitfalls hold fast their faith there is the promise of life eternal. God proves faith by this prolonged battle against sin. It is stimulated by resistance just as the earth is vitalized with electricity by the friction of the winds. Ease results in decay; but a struggle for existence brings self-sustaining power. A walnut tree planted in a sunny, sheltered spot grows rapidly into a beautiful tree, but flowering too early is blighted by frost. The same tree given a northeast exposure becomes gnarled and wind bent. Hardy enough to endure all changes, in due time it will bear a plentiful harvest. Look not for visible results from all efforts; be content to go steadily on with a childlike trust in things not seen. "Put on the armor of God." Above all taking the shield of faith wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." With strength not your own you may be able to overcome the powers of darkness and at the end of the battle say, "I have fought the good fight and kept the faith."

THE NEWS OF BROOKS.

Mrs. L. A. Cook is convalescent.

Hale Hall cut his foot quite badly one day last week.

Mrs. Marion Huxford, who has been poorly, is improved in health.

Mrs. Mary Bennett is still very sick and sometimes suffers intensely.

Mrs. L. A. Bacheider has been afflicted with a light attack of the grip for a few days.

Deputy Sheriff A. B. Payson was over on the B. and A. strike line last week on official duty.

Joseph Decrow has narrowly missed losing his hand from a slight wound with a splinter, and resulting blood poisoning.

Earle Roberts is around on crutches, the result of having his foot badly jammed under the butt of a tree he was falling.

Mrs. Eliza Leathers, who for some months was an invalid, is now able to do her work, but is not quite as active as she used to be.

H. H. Piley, who has been confined to the house, is now at the store each day, and Mrs. Piley is able to be about the house and do her work.

Mrs. Fanning of Exeter, who is cook and housekeeper for the Johnson mill crew, comes over to the village occasionally on pleasant afternoons.

The dry and fancy goods people find it dull times this month, as is usual in February; but they are marking time and hoping for the best in the future.

Ansel Decrow, engineer and miller for T. J. Huxford, has been off duty for several days, the result of having his hand caught in the machinery.

Golden Crown Lodge, K. of P., conferred the rank of Esquire upon a candidate Tuesday evening, A. B. Payson acting as C. C. The work was followed by a collation.

Saturday, Feb. 15th, was settling day for town business and the selectmen were in their office. J. G. Stimpson, the town treasurer, was in attendance and took some money, but it is rather hard just the same.

Mrs. Tilton Elliott, who has been in poor health for some months, was taken worse last Sunday morning, having what seemed to be a shock. She was alone and in bed at the time. Her condition is considered serious.

Miss Melcher of Brunswick, who has spent the winter with her cousin, Mrs. Ada Stimpson, has returned to her home. She formed some pleasant acquaintances while here and her friends will miss her pleasant society.

A change has been made in the enterprising firm of Emmons & Barden, builders and architects. Roscoe A. Barden goes out of the concern and Wilbur F. Emmons is to continue it. Both are good, able men, and there is always something doing when they are on deck. Mr. Barden has a lot on York street and thinks of building a house there next summer.

BURNHAM.

It is very sickly here, nearly every home having one in it sick with a bad cold or grip. F. P. Shaw filled his storehouse with hay in the fall and is now busy loading it onto the cars. The lack of snow does not hinder him. Prescott & Watson's saw mill has been idle a few days, waiting for repairs. The village saw mill has been put in first class condition and is ready for business when we have snow so that the lumber cut and waiting in the woods can be hauled. Mrs. Maude Mudgett, Lecturer of Burnham Grange, attended the Lecturer's Conference in Augusta last week.

Mrs. H. E. Kinney and son Kenneth visited in Freedom several days last week. Waldo Lodge, K. of P., and Victory Temple, Pythian Sisters, held a most enjoyable joint installation at the hall Feb. 17th. Edgar Brown of Waterville, G. K. of R. & S., assisted by Mr. Barnes of Waterville as Grand Prelate and U. S. Perry as G. M. at Arms, installed the Knights. The Sisters were installed by Mrs. Annie S. Arnold, G. M. of R. & C., of Augusta, assisted by Katrina Bryant as Grand Senior and Susie McKechnie as Grand Manager. After the installation a baked bean supper was served in the dining room. Pomeroy's orchestra furnished music for a short dance program, which was enjoyed by the light of foot. Nine new names were pledged to Victory Temple for initiation. Friends of Mrs. Lavina J. Crockett of this town are congratulating her upon her recent marriage to Mr. L. J. Sanderson of Fort Fairfield. Mrs. L. M. Baxter is critically ill with pneumonia. Mr. Baxter is in very feeble health. He will be 95 years old April 9th. Dr. Goodridge and assistants came Monday morning to operate on Mrs. Everett Gerald.

ISLESBORO.

Miss Annie L. Farnsworth returned home from Pittsfield for the spring vacation Feb. 15th. Mrs. Justina Thomas and F. D. Pendleton are quite ill with the grip.

STOCKTON SPRINGS.

Mr. and Mrs. Hupper are housekeeping in the chambers of Mrs. John M. Ames' house, School street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Shute returned Feb. 12th from Portland and have been for a week past with Mrs. Shute's mother, Mrs. Albert C. Colcord, East Main street.

The Current Events club will be entertained Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 26th, by Mrs. Alvah C. Treat, Church street. All members are cordially invited to be present.

Mr. Richard P. Heagan of Rumford Falls arrived in town Monday and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon F. Ellis, Church street. Welcome to the boyhood's home, "Richard."

Hon. C. S. Hichborn of Augusta arrived in town Saturday afternoon to spend Sunday with his sisters, the Misses Hichborn, Church street. He took the train Monday afternoon for home.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Universalist parish will meet, socially, this Thursday, afternoon with Mrs. Simeon F. Ellis, Church street. All are invited to join in the recreations of the hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinkham, two children, and Madam Pinkham, have rented the second floor of Mrs. Carrie A. Gardner's house (the so-called, Crocker place) Middle street for their present home.

From Cape Jellison pier, the following shipping report was telephoned Monday evening: Feb. 13th, steamer Millinocket sailed, with paper and potatoes for New York. Feb. 17th, tug Walter Ross arrived, towing Rockland & Rockport Lime Co.'s Barge No. 7, to load paper for Boston.

Monday, as these items are being written, we are having a snowstorm, a continuation of yesterday's storm. Sleights are used; but the traveling is far from good. Shall we enjoy any fine sleighing after this late date? Perhaps we shall have the old-fashioned "six-weeks' sledding in March!"

Mrs. Alvah C. Treat, Church street, attended the funeral of Mrs. Helen Smith, wife of Mr. William Smith, Feb. 11th, at the family home in the upper section of this town. Many friends in the village mourn with the bereaved husband the death of his most estimable, intellectual and genial companion.

The masked ball given in Denslow hall on the evening of Feb. 12th, proved a success in all its features; large company, a goodly number of masks, attractive and unique costumes, (complete disguises often) and a merry gathering of young and middle aged, determined on throwing dull care aside for at least one jolly social season of laughter and dancing.

The interior repairs, so long necessary in Denslow hall, are being made, and it is the intention of the present owners, the late Capt. Melvin E. Colcord heirs, to have the new wood ceiling completed before the evening of Feb. 22nd. Further improvements will be made when the weather is milder. The community appreciate this refitting of the largest public hall in the village.

Last week Stockton had the following daily weather: Sunday, clear and cold; Monday, bright sunshine, very cold atmosphere—14 degrees below zero in exposed localities in early morning; Tuesday, damp snowstorm; Wednesday, bright sunshine, furious wind, blowing light snow through the streets in almost smothering clouds; Thursday, cold, bright day; Friday, clear sky, sharp, cold air; Saturday, mild, with overcast skies.

Messrs. Hupper and Pinkham—The Ames Grocery Co.—took possession of the J. M. Ames Co.'s store and business Monday. Success to our new citizens, although we shall miss the familiar faces of Messrs. A. M. Ames and S. E. Merritt in the old place! Mr. Hosea Renuff is to remain as head clerk with the new firm. The present week Mr. A. M. Ames and the bookkeeper, Miss Sadie Merrihue, will be in the store to introduce the new proprietors to the former patrons of the business house.

"The Strike" is still holding out. No one can understand the final outcome. Judging from newspaper accounts there is no more attempting of violent acts in the Aroostook county section of the B. & A., than in this division of the railroad. The public suffers the inconvenience of such disturbances in the carrying facilities of the neighborhood. It is hoped some arbitration may adjust matters before much more time has elapsed. Let justice be done all around and business resume its normal functions!

The frequent rehearsals of the minstrels is giving assurance of a most pleasing entertainment in Denslow hall on the evening of Feb. 22nd. Don't fail to enjoy the many novel features of this big show! Mrs. A. Flanders has been indefatigable in her efforts to render this entertainment highly satisfactory and somewhat novel in many lines. She, and her ready suggestive committee associates, are sparing no endeavors to render this "colored minstrel" performance equal to the best ever seen here or elsewhere! Tickets are selling well, and already a goodly attendance is assured. Be one of the listeners!

From "The Bangor Daily News," of February 10th, we copy the following, which will be of interest to many present and former Stockton residents: "The funeral of Richard D. Ames was held at the residence, 56 Summer street, Thursday afternoon, Rev. A. A. Smith officiating. Mrs. W. A. Nelson and Mrs. H. C. McMahon sang. The bearers were H. I. Hutchings, I. M. Hutchings, J. W. Jenkins and G. W. Cluff. The interment was in Mount Hope cemetery." Mr. Ames was for years a townsman of Stockton, being engaged in the hardware, stove and tin-ware business; first with his brother, Mr. Alonzo D. Ames, and later with Mr. S. A. Rendell. Mr. Ames will be vividly recalled by all who in youth appreciated his fine violin playing and his rare faculty of conducting dances in our village. Few equaled him in "calling" cotillions or in maintaining dignity and prime order in the halls. He loved music; his violin was dear to his heart. Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Ames—now an invalid—and to the only child, Mr. Charles H. Ames of Baltimore, Md.

UNITY.

The death of Ellen M., wife of J. R. Tabor, occurred Friday morning at her home, at the age of 72 years. She leaves to mourn her death a husband, two daughters and many friends. Whitney was the guest of her people in Troy over Sunday. Dr. Benson of Newport was a professional visitor in town Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Clair Willey of Pittsfield have moved into the house with H. H. Rice. Miss Maude Henderson of Stratford, Conn., is in town, called here by the death of Mrs. Tabor.

Ex-Senator Hale Seriously Ill.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder:

68 1/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

SEA-SMONT.

The men are improving the snow hauling wood and ice. Let us hope we may have more snow that the good work may continue.

Mrs. Hattie Crie's father, Mr. John Connor of Appleton, died last week. There is a "free library" at the home of Mr. Charles Cunningham. Anyone wishing the books to read can have them by calling there and conforming with the rules of the library.

The Epworth League entertainment that was to have been given Feb. 21st has been indefinitely postponed.

Paul is in Boston on business. Farmers are very busy getting ice and hauling lumber. Not much snow and all are hoping for more. Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Wilson spent Feb. 14th with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Howes in Liberty. It was the 30th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Howes. William Sheldon is cooperating with W. S. Poland. Mrs. Helen Mears of Morrill visited Mrs. Ellen Goodwin the past week. Mr. H. W. Ladd and Mrs. Flora Rokes were in East Searsmont, Feb. 15th. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fuller were in Belfast Feb. 15th. M. F. Hunt has a new line of wall paper samples which he would be pleased to show to all who wish.

MORRILL.

Congratulations are in order to Arthur W. Leonard, Esq., of this town, who not only has become Register of Probate for Waldo County but last week became a Benedict. He with his bride spent last Saturday and Sunday with his aged parents. The Ladies Aid Society spent the day last Friday, with Mrs. Herbert Wentworth of Waldo. A picnic dinner was served and the day was very enjoyable. The society meets again this week, Thursday, with Mrs. Ella Littlefield and Mrs. Ida Cross. Mrs. G. W. Pearson is visiting her children in Massachusetts. Mr. Clarence Paul made visits in Appleton and Rockland the first of this week. Mrs. Frank Brown and Mr. Elmer Brown of Lawrence, Mass., were in town last week. They came to attend the funeral of Mr. Tilston Wadlin. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. B. Brown are spending a few days in Belfast with his sister, Mrs. Tilston Wadlin. Rev. Nathan Hunt of Charleston, Me., occupied the pulpit last Sunday. Mr. Forest White, who is employed in Montreal, Canada, was at home for a few days last week. The "Fathers" of the town are engaged in settling the business ready for the town meeting March 3d.

APPLETON.

Mrs. Sarah E. Robbins, who was 78 years of age, Feb. 12th, was the recipient of 120 birthday cards and wishes to thank her friends who so kindly remembered her with many pretty and useful presents in addition to the cards. She had as visitors on her birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Robbins and daughter Elizabeth, Mrs. James Robbins and daughters Ruth and Priscilla of Searsmont. Miss Mildred Wentworth, who recently finished a term of twenty-one weeks of school, with a vacation of one week, arrived home from Morrill Wednesday. Feb. 13th was the oldest day of the winter here, the thermometer registering 15 degrees below in the morning. The remains of George A. Pease, who died in Thomaston Feb. 7th, were brought here and buried in the family lot in Pine Grove cemetery. Mr. Pease was a former resident of Appleton. Clarence Fish is at home from Bates College, the guest of his parents at the Valley House. The Ladies Aid of the Baptist Church held a Valentine social and apron sale Friday evening, Feb. 14th, at Grange hall which was well patronized by the public. The roads are now in fairly good condition for sledding, which is being improved by those having wood, logs and "stave stuff" to get to their homes and the mills.

A Spanish War Flag.

AUGUSTA, Me., Feb. 13. The days of the Spanish War were recalled at the Adjutant General's office at the State House this afternoon when the Stars and Stripes presented to the 1st Maine Infantry by the citizens of Hildesford and Saco were turned over to the State and placed in the Spanish War flag case with the other colors borne by the regiment during the War of '98.

MARINE MISCELLANY.

The Revenue Cutter service record for year of 1912 shows 260 vessels assisted, 2212 persons rescued from danger and property valued at $10,717,488 saved.

The old barkentine Hancock is to be converted into a barge. She has long escaped the fate of most square riggers. She was built by Wm H. Genn in Bucksport in 1869 and
